

Demnlus Johnson III,

I was born in Richmond to 3 prior generations of a working family. I believe in Richmond and our future which is why I've dedicated my career to serving the people of Richmond. I am running to be on our next City Council to lead Richmond forward without leaving anyone behind.

As a Richmond High School Community Worker, I'm working to create a school-to-union pipeline and connect our youth to resources that help them rise academically and socially.

As Chair of our Economic Development Commission and member of our Citizens Police Review Commission, I listen to our community and work for our people, city, and future.

We need more leaders on our next City Council who believe in and work for economic development that includes high quality and equitable education, job growth, business recruitment and retention.

We need more leaders on our next City Council who believe in and work for public safety that includes criminal justice reform, reduced gun violence, community and communicative policing.

We need more leaders on our next City Council who encourage community engagement and aren't afraid to interact with the community, listen as well as hear, and create more than band-aid solutions to transportation, healthcare, housing and other critical issues.

I am proud to have my candidacy supported by working families, unions, educators, and community organizations. I ask for your vote to put me to work even harder for all of Richmond.
